Here's Story of Trenches

By PEGGY McCULLEY

Are rodent refugees from Carmel Hill building a subway to shuttle across the MPC campus? Students returning from the Christmas holiday wondered what was happening when they saw the 20-inch trenches criss-crossing the campus.

Ray Parker, head custodian, told El Yanqui that the project is a $3500 sprinkler system due for completion early next semester.

More than 3,000 feet of plastic pipe is being laid in the trenches to connect the sprinklers, he said. Because it is free from rust or corrosion, the plastic will last at least 20 years. Plastic pipe is also easier to install, since it can be joined with a quick-drying glue and requires no threading.

The sprinklers will be turned on automatically at 2 a.m. daily, Parker said, so the water should have soaked in long before the first students arrive for 8 o'clocks. The clocks, located in the Administration and Home Economics buildings, will regulate the amount of water according to the composition and geography of each turf area.

"We've run into a few problems digging the furrows," the custodian said. "One trench will take only ten minutes, while another will require half a day. But the job's just about done now."

Concert Season Begins Tuesday

The MPC Concert Band will begin its concert season in the Armory Tuesday at 11 a.m. Dr. Bruce Hubbard will direct a program of varied selections by Verdi, Leroy Anderson, Tchaikovsky, and the late Oscar Hammerstein. Selections will be presented from Hammerstein's recent Broadway hit, "The Sound of Music."

An "English March" will lead off the program featuring a trumpet solo by Phil Rodrigues. During the program, solo parts will be presented by other members of the thirty-five piece band.

The band includes members from the Music 30 class, only a few of whom are Music majors. They play in the band for pleasure and for greater skill in musicianship. The band welcomes anyone who has a knowledge of music and enjoys playing in a group, Dr. Hubbard said.

Following this concert, the Band will tour other schools in the area, concluding its tour with the "Symphony for Fun" on May 19th.

Next El Yanqui

This issue of El Yanqui is the last for the Fall semester. The first issue in the Spring semester will be out Friday, February 10.

William Winter to Give Three Evening Lectures

"Critique III," the third series of commentaries on American society, concerned with our relations with both Russia and Red China, will be presented by William Winter, internationally known news analyst, newscaster and foreign correspondent, and by Felix Greene, newscaster, author and former British Broadcasting Corporation official.

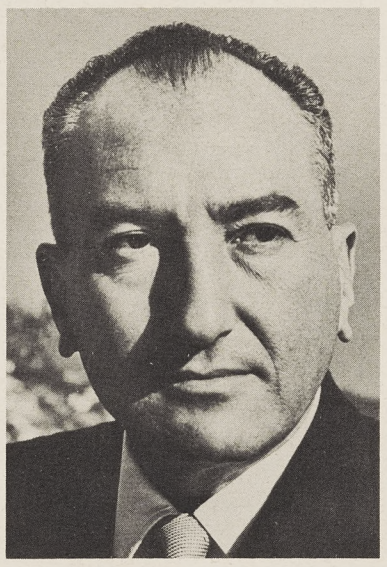
Mr. Winter will open with a series of three lectures on "The United States and the USSR." These will be presented on Jan. 20 and 27 and Feb. 3. Mr. Greene will speak on "The United States and Red China" May 5, 12 and 19. Both series will be presented in the library lecture hall at 8 p.m.

These commentaries are offered by the Evening Division as a service to the community and are open to the public without charge.

Mr. Winter has had a distinguished career as an attorney, radio and television news analyst and foreign correspondent and as a war correspondent during World War II. He has also gained wide renown as a lectured on current affairs.

Just before United States involvement in WWII, Mr. Winter became the first unofficial Voice of America. His broadcasts were beamed to the Pacific and Asiatic areas and attempted to explain this country's ideas of democracy, the freedom it provides for expression of individual opinion and the concern of the American people as a whole for the future of Asia.

During the campaign to liberate the Philippines, Mr. Winter was a war correspondent attached to General MacArthur's headquarters. From there he made daily radio broadcasts to the people of the Philippines. Of these broadcasts the late President of the Philippines, Mr. Ramon Magsaysay, once said, "Without your broadcasts, we would have lost hope and morale. Some might have capitulated to the Japanese. But you assured us of eventual victory and we believed you." After the war Mr. Winter was decorated by the Philippine government with the award of Commander of the Legion of Honor.



William Winter

As a foreign correspondent, Mr. Winter has traveled the world extensively and counts many world leaders as his friends.

Mr. Greene, a native of England, is considered a seasoned observer of the international scene and has traveled extensively in Europe and the Far East. He was formerly head of the BBC staff in the U.S. He lives in California.

Registration Continues For Spring Semester

Registration for the Spring semester is now about two-thirds completed, according to Louise White, MPC Registrar. Even before Christmas vacation, 409 students were registered for classes, including 162 sophomores.

Entrance examinations for new students planning to attend next semester will be held Jan. 14 and 28 in the Armory.

Finals start next Thursday and will continue through Thursday, Jan. 26. Grades for the fall semestter will be available at the counseling desk in the Administration Building Jan. 30.

Night school courses begin Monday, Feb. 6. Evening registration will be held in the Student Union Jan. 30 through Feb. 3. Students must register before instruction starts. Day students are expected to number at 1100 and evening division enrollment is estimated at 1500 for the Spring semester.

Stock New ASMPC Head, Lamont Wins VP Runoff

By REED NESSEL

Student Body officers, elected last Friday, were presented by retiring ASMPC President Dave Lasky at an elections dance on Saturday night.

It appeared at first as if there would have to be a run-off between Phil Stock and Jack Preston for President. However, when Lasky called on Preston to speak, Preston withdrew from the campaign and conceded the election to Stock.

In a run-off election between Norman Lamont and Johnny St. John for vice president Wednesday, Lamont won.

Nadine Drake was elected Secretary, Polly Popoff was re-elected Commissioner of Activities, Tony Piazza was named Commissioner of Athletics and Roger Norum was chosen Commissioner of Publications. It had been previously announced that Sharon Watson was elected Commissioner of Clubs.

Mr. Duncan Sprague, Director of Student Activities, said that he was "pleased with all the candidates" and he "felt that the students could not lose."

Sprague said of the turnout, "35 per cent is better than 25 per cent, but it's not like 80 or 90 per cent." 353 ballots were cast. He also commented that it was interesting to note that the IBM system used in this election did not work, and that the counting turned out to be a job of hand sorting. He attributed the trouble to students not following instructions and to the confusing nature of the cards themselves.

Commenting on student activities, Sprague said that there were "points at which we had enthusiasm." Any activity which is planned as far in the future as most of MPC's are necessarily loses some of the spontaneity which is important to "spark the student's interest," according to Sprague.

Sprague also looked forward to next semester's activities, and said, "There are many dates open for social activities. It is up to the students to get more involved." He urged that any students having ideas for activities consult with a student council member, Polly Popoff or him personally.

New Prexy Hits Apathy

By PHIL STOCK

Since I was elected to serve as your Student Body President, many students have approached me with this question: How are you going to overcome student apathy on our campus?

I always reply, "Create student interest!" For the next semester I will serve as your student leader. On behalf of the new Council I'd like to tell you a few of the activities we are considering to create student interest.

Student activities need not be restricted to the campus. In the spring, when some students are cuttting classes to soak up the rays, we hope to arrange a swimming party at one of the local pools. This would be held some evening, and would be followed by a dance.

Rec-nites are planned where the student can socialize, meet new friends, play ping pong, dance and participate in other activities. After game dances will continue as before, and the sponsering clubs will make these dances enjoyable for the students to attend.

In April we are looking forward to Charity Week. A few of the activities already planned are the Circle-K Boxing Smoker to be held in the Armory, a carnival and dance, and activities to continue each day during the week.

The Council is looking into starting social clubs. These clubs will be of the Greek lettered fraternity type and will compete in different activities on and off campus.

It is up to you students to join in these planned activities. If you have no time, then at least let the Council know what you want. Come to the meetings, or stop me on campus and I will be glad to take your suggestion to the Council. The strength of ASMPC lies in the quality of its members.

Freedom Is a 'Dangerous Thing,' Says Ray Fabrizio at AGS Lecture

"Individualism today more than ever before takes the form of dissent," Mr. Ray Fabrizio told members of AGS this week in the third of series of lectures on civil rights.

Discussing "The Value of Dissent," Mr. Fabrizio said, "We live in a world quite different from that of Jefferson. Civil rights is a much more complex problem."

"To me," he continued, "the only kind of equality which means anything is the freedom to express our differences, the freedom to be ourselves together."

In a recent AGS lecture Mr. DeForest Sweeney said that "freedom is a fearful thing." Mr. Fabrizio agreed, adding that is is also a "dangerous thing. It takes courage and faith to be free and let our neighbor be free with us," he explained.

Continuing, Mr. Fabrizio said, "This is why freedom is dangerous. It means risk, even on the most elemental level. If I fear getting killed when I cross the street, then I do not have to cross. But if

Raymond Fabrizio

I choose to cross, then I choose freedom over security. Conversely, if a society's only concern is security, then it follows that it should not allow freedom. Khrushchev understands this logic. Knowing that maximum security means minimum liberty, he does not allow freedom. Freedom being, of course, against the common good."

Mr. Fabrizio quoted the late Chief Justice Holmes: "We cannot condemn a man for what he might do." This, he explained, is the "clear and present danger doctrine" which in effect says that where the law is not clear, a man may think, say, or do what he wants, providing the action will not produce imminence of danger to the state.

Continuing his explanation, he said that one may not shout "Fire!" in a crowded theatre. In all likelihood such action would produce panic and public danger. Thoughts of this kind would not be considered illegal, however, unless they necessarily led to imminent illegal action, he remarked.

"When a man is forced to disclose his beliefs, his privacy is violated," he said. "Privacy of conscience is the most fundamental thing in our democracy."

Mr. Fabrizio believes that there is a time in history when fear of something brings about the persecution of innocent men and therefor it is important that we be dissenters and have the right to advocate.

EDITORIAL

Should Clubs Rule?

. . . a government of the clubs, by the clubs and for the clubs.

With all due respect for those officers of the ASMPC who strive to provide sound leadership, a government by the clubs and for the clubs is what we have.

When considered in this light student government is not only ineffective at MPC but also not representative. This absence of representation should be the primary concern of everyone.

Under our present Constitution only five members of the entire student council are elected by the associated student body. The remainder of the council members come from the clubs and each controls a vote; as much power as the President of ASMPC!

As long as this situation continues, the student government will find it impossible ". . . to foster a spirit of unity in all student activities, to promote the growth and development of the college . . ." and provide effective leadership.

To do this there must be officers elected by the associated students and responsible to those students. This is not to say that clubs should not have some voice, but they should not have the balance of power. That power belongs to the students not the special interest groups.

El Yanqui proposes that an independent, non-partisan committee be formed to study this problem. Such a committee, without affiliation with the present student government, could work objectively and efficiently. There cannot be any buck passing here. A solution must be found.

'e.g.' Invites You

If you feel you have a talent for creative expression and no outlet for it, try "e.g."

A student annual, the third issue of "e.g." is now being prepared for publication.

In the two previous issues, contributors achieved a standard of creative expression which marked MPC as a junior college which does something new and different. Typical of the bouquets received is the commendation from Ernest Jaqua, former president, Scripps College: "especially commendable because we do not ordinarily think of a junior college as being fundamentally interested in the upper ranges of humanistic expression."

If you have an idea that you'd like to see in print, or know of anyone who has such an idea, try "e.g." Whether it is verse or prose; a free-hand sketch, a painting, a photograph, or a cartoon; satirical, romantic, humorous, or lyrical; factual or fictional, "e.g." can use it, so long as it has literary or artistic merit.

All MPC students are potential contributors. "e.g." not only wants their contributions, but needs them. Get yours in as soon as you can, but in any event not later than March 15.

LETTER

Sharon Watson Answers Several Editorial Beefs

To the Editor:

Your last issue was a very disturbing one to me. The editorial page displayed much of the general student body's ignorance of student government operations. In answering reporter Wright's question concerning planks in this election, students showed that they have not read their own constitution, have not read the minutes of the Student Council, and have not participated in many school activities.

Let me clear up some misconceptions. Student activities for the most part are initiated, planned, and carried out by the students, not the faculty. This is done in the clubs. The club presidents get Inter Club Council approval of activities. "Homecoming's" success was greatly dependent on the cooperation of the club members. Some activities evolve out of Student Council and also Executive Council.

We of student government have tried to build a closer relationship between ourselves and the student body. We certainly cannot carry out activities by ourselves. We have asked for students' help, but as usual most people want to partake of an activity but nobody wants to work to make it a success. Those who complain the most are generally those who have helped the least.

Anybody may attend ICC, Student Council and Executive Council. They may speak by asking for the privilege of the floor. Their voice will influence the way the officers vote.

All minutes of Student Council and Executive Council are posted in the Student Union, the library, and the ASMPC office. Our budget is also printed up and presented to the Student Council every month. Copies of the budget may be obtained from Mrs. Jolley.

For the girl writing about the Freshman Class, I have this: The main purpose of having a class president and secretary - treasurer is to involve more students in student government. Money for all ASMPC sponsored events comes from ASMPC and is budgeted. The only assigned activity of the Freshman Class is the Spring Prom. Both class presidents and secretary-treasurers are involved in general student government work.

To the gentleman writing on campus dress under "Letters," I have this to say: Frankly, we of student government like sex too, but we feel that students can look just as sexy in a skirt or pair of slacks as in bermudas. We also feel that a broad backside looks better in a skirt than in bermudas. With today's many styles of clothing and hair and with so many colors to choose from, I don't think anybody has to lose his individuality.

The editorial entitled "Council Passes Buck" presented only one side of the issue. Let me try to explain the other. There is no law to back up Student Council on restricting dress in the Student Union area. Student dress is not too big a problem in the Union. Student dress does become a problem in the classroom. Whether we care to admit it or not, bermudas are distracting to students and teachers. The most efficient method to remedy this problem was to request that all teachers not allow improperly dressed students into classes. If anybody has a better solution, let him submit his ideas to student officers. We are open to suggestions at any time. Remember, we are representing you.

As a final word, let me remind everybody of the past election. You should have found out how your candidate felt about your gripes and then voted. If you didn't vote, then you have no right to complain. Sharon Watson

Editor's note: Thanks for a thoughtful letter. However, we feel that Student Council should have exercised its legislative power to make detailed limitations instead of a recommendation to the faculty on campus dress.

Mrs. Gammons Dies

SJSC Faculty Exhibits Will Open MPC Spring Art Gallery Program

Paintings, water colors, oils, textiles and ceramics by San Jose State College faculty members will be featured in the art show which will open MPC's new art gallery in the Library basement for 10 days beginning Mar. 7.

Heavy use of the Audio-Visual Room, says Mr. Robert Nelson, art department instructor, has made opening of a separate gallery for art displays advisable.

During the 1961 spring semester six art shows are planned.

Of these, five will be sponsored by the MPC Art Department, and one will be sponsored by Monterey Peninsula Chapter, American Federation of Arts during the week Jan. 31 to Feb. 6.

The last one scheduled for the Audio-Visual Room, the American Federation of Arts show will feature paintings by artists with international reputations and owned by local collectors.

Other shows include the following:

Exhibits by children from primary schools in the MPC District, April 3 to 14.

Santa Fe paintings by Frank Myers, April 24 to May 4.

Photographs by Brett Weston, May 15 to 26.

Fifth Annual MPC student art exhibit, June 6 to 13.

All shows are open to the public free.

Lasky Warns Against Pitfalls

Outgoing ASMPC President Dave Lasky this week warned the incoming administration against two pitfalls. He said that the executive officers should delegate a greater portion of their responsibilities and authority. Organization early in the semester also is necessary to avoid the pitfall of apathy, he said.

These two suggestions, he said, will enable the officers to reduce the load of administrative detail and allow them to devote more time to planning.

Lasky said that his job had been very rewarding in learning how to work with people. He thanked all those who had worked with him and said, "I particularly want to thank the Administration because there was no interference from them on any matters, only constructive criticism which helped me greatly."

Library Celebrates Anniversary Of 1960 'M-Day' Without Fanfare

Happy Birthday to the MPC Library! This month marks the first anniversary of its new building.

No special ceremonies have been scheduled to celebrate the anniversary, according to Miss Margaret Thompson, head librarian.

The new building was ready last January 20, and the task of moving the books from the old library was undertaken. At 8 o'clock on M-Day the students, some of them released from classes for the occasion, began transfering the books. The job was completed by 10:30 and the new facility was ready for use. Some 16,000 volumes were moved.

Books and shelves were marked with corresponding colors and numbers and the student book movers had little trouble getting the right books to the right shelves.

This move was patterned after a similar one which took place at Hartnell the year before.

The $330,000 cruciform structure was designed by architect Wallace J. Holm. It is capable of serving a student body of 2,500. The present stacks, containing over 16,00 books, are able to handle up to 31,000 volumes. Ultimately, the design calls for a capacity of over 62,000 volumes.

The north wing is now occupied by four classrooms but is designed to duplicate the reading room at the opposite end of the building. When ample classroom space becomes available elsewhere on the campus and enrollment increases, the wing will probably be converted into a reference and study hall.

With the use of graphs, Miss Thompson can show recent growth in library use from varied angles. The use of reserve books has nearly doubled since the move and evening use of the facility has skyrocketed.

MUN Delegates Work on Agenda, Elect Robert Simons as Chairman

Bob Simons has been elected chairman of the MPC delegation to the MUN.

Simons, who was also a member of the 1960 delegation, will be in charge of details such as housing and credentials. Along with Dr. Ray Gilmore, advisor, he will coordinate activities of the delegation before and during the meeting at the University of Oregon.

The agenda for the 1961 MUN has been received. Activities have been divided into five different committees, political and security, special political, economic and finance, social-humanitarian and cultural commission, and a full disarmament commission.

Each member of the MPC delegation will represent Mexico on one of these committees. Also included on the agenda are meetings of a Security Council and an Economic and Social Council.

Hoopsters Finish Pre-Season Games with Eight-Six Record

By REED NESSEL

After running up a three and one record in early season competition, the Lobos completed their non - conference schedule with eight victories and six setbacks. This record is more optimistic than it looks, because MPC faced some outstanding teams during their holiday travels and took two out of three games at the Coast Conference Tournament in Vallejo.

The Lobos went to San Jose on Dec. 13 to face the San Jose State frosh. The rangy Spartans had too much rebounding, and the Lobos bowed 46-36. MPC showed a good defense, but couldn't get going offensively, as high-scoring Mel Mason was held to six points. Charlie Vaughn led the scoring with 13, followed by Jim Payne with eight.

MPC then moved to Vallejo and the Coast Conference tourney. Mel Mason sparked the Lobos to a first - round 65-59 victory over Hartnell. This was MPC's eighth consecutive victory over the Panthers. Mason hit for 20 points, followed by Jim Payne with 15 and Bill Hicks with 11.

The Lobos then swept a semi-final victory from Vallejo, 57-40, and moved into the tournament finals. Jerry Hayes paced the MPC scoring with 18 points, backed by Mel Mason with 11 and dependable Jim Payne with 10.

The Lobos ran head-on into a hot San Jose five in the tourney finals and dropped a frustrating 66-54 decision, scoring on only 21 per cent of their shots. Mel Mason led the scoring with 17, while Vaughn and Hayes had nine apiece. Jim Payne was named to a guard spot on the all-tourney team.

Returning to the friendly confines on Monterey High School, the Lobos dropped a last-minute thriller to Chaffey, 64-61, after leading for most of the game. Mel Mason hit for 29 points, while Payne had 10.

After taking a short vacation, the Lobos returned to action in the Hancock Christmas tournament, facing the highly-regarded host team in the first round. Rebounding was again the Lobos' problem, as Hancock triumphed 65-49. Mel Mason led the scoring with 16 points, followed by Charlie Vaughn with 10.

MPC moved into the consolation bracket, and found it to their liking, as they dismantled their next two opponents. Mel Mason and Russ Wise led the Lobos to an 80-47 victory over Porterville, hitting for 24 and 21 points respectively. This victory moved the Lobos into the consolation finals, and they crushed Coalinga 78-39 to win the consolation title. Mel Mason outscored the entire Coalinga team with a 42 point performance to lead the Lobos. Mason set a tournament and school record with his outburst, and earned a spot on the all-tournament team.

Having wrapped up their holiday action, the Lobos took a six-day rest before a home-court rematch with Porterville. Again MPC swamped the Porterville five, this time 85-65. Mel Mason tallied 30 and Jim Payne 26 to pace the Lobos. They were followed by Vaughn and Wise with 11 apiece. Mason and Payne alone accounted for 27 field goals, as compared with the 20 produced by the Porterville team.

The Lobos closed their exhibition schedule with an exciting 67-60 loss to the Cal frosh in Berkeley. It was rebounding that again spelled defeat for the Lobos, as the larger Cal team controlled the boards. Mel Mason continued his high scoring ways as he tossed in 19 points; Jim Payne had 11 and Mike Olivieria scored 10.

Why Not Participate?

How good is the Intramural Sports program at MPC? Is it as good as those of other colleges? Hardly!

Intramural athletics grew out of the embryonic stage recently and the lack of success should not be traced to the Commissioner of Athletics but rather to the lack of interest on the part of the students.

After near failure, the Intramural Basketball League got under way. The basketball league is practically the only form of athletics at MPC other than the varsity teams.

The outgoing Commissioner of Athletics made an honest attempt to set up a successful program, but the burden of establishing a worthy Intramural schedule now rests in the hands of the newly elected Commissioner of Athletics, Tony Piazza.

What are the possibilities of an intramural track meet, open only to non-members of the Varsity track team? What of a softball game between the freshman and sophomore classes?

To have a successful intramural program in the Spring semester, more student body members must compete in some form of intramural athletics. Sports Editors.

Athletes Given 52 Awards at Assembly

Forty-two athletes received jackets, watches, certificates, or belt buckles at the Awards Assembly last week in the armory.

Cross Country coach Luke Phillips presented awards to the league championship MPC distance runners.

The entire team of Jose Azevedo, Mel Barrett, Mike Mullany, Ed Lawton, Jack Preston, Lynn Petersen, Matt Tielemans, Mel O'Boyle and Steve Anderson received sterling silver belt-buckles donated by the ASMPC.

Petersen was awarded a watch for lettering twice in the same sport. Azevedo received a certificate because he had won a watch during the track season. Lawton also received a certificate.

Barrett, Mullany, Preston and Tielemans earned award jackets.

Jackets for lettering for the first time went to Rod Clark, Walt Benge, Shig Shimada, Jerry Hatcher, Fred Boucher, Jim Loften, Danny Schwartz, Ron Locicero, Loren Lorenson, Manual Cordova, Len Newman, Dave Oliver, Dave Chapla, Rich Sundborg, Ted Locicero, Pete Lavin, Bob Olmo, Dick Austin, Finley Sutton, Loyce Singleton, Bill Parham (Mgr.), John Sahlberg, Jim Dotson, Tim Mitchell, Charlie Vaughn, and Nick Hylton.

Certificates were given to those who already had jackets, Ron Palmer and Gabe Lopez.

Watches were awarded to Dennis Jackson, LeeRoy Gutierrez, Bill Woodward, Bob Scardina, Mike Walsh, Pete Tarantino and John Deaton, manager.

In all, eight watches, thirty-one jackets, four certificates, and nine belt-buckles were awarded to the 1960 fall athletic teams.

Lobos Open League Action This Weekend

Our steadily improving basketball team opens Coast Conference action against Diablo Valley tonight at Monterey High School. The Lobos host Vallejo tomorrow night at Carmel High School.

Coach Larry Cummins feels that this weekend's games will be "the toughest double-header the club will face all year." He is urging students to attend the games "to give the fellows support." Both games start at 8 o'clock.

Diablo Valley has compiled a 6-6 pre-conference record. According to Cummins, Diablo is a defensive team, but records show the Vikings have scored 660 points to their opponents' 656. That gives the Vikings a healthy 55 points-per-game average.

Cummins says Diablo "hustles and runs good patterns." San Jose City College, winner of Coast Conference Tournament, barely managed to beat them by four points. Diablo won the consolation bracket of the tournament.

Dan Montgomery leads the Vikings in scoring, with 186 points in 12 games for a 15 pt. acerage. He was also named to the All-Tournament Team at the Coast Conference Tourney. Guard George Smylie and center Rannie Smith back up the Vikings' scoring attack.

Although the Lobos have faced Vallejo and defeated them 57-40 in what Cummins considers "MPC's best defensive effort," the Lobo coach thinks the scrappy Vallejo team might be fired up for Saturday's clash.

Vallejo has beaten San Francisco City College, a school noted for its basketball success.

The big gun for Vallejo is Ray Toney, a 6-4 forward. Another 6-4 forward, Willie McJunkin, gives Toney help in scoring.

Cummins has worked the Lobos on defensive drills during the week. "Our offense is doing fine, but our defense needs work," he said.

The Lobos finish up the first semester's basketball efforts Jan. 21 when they travel to Santa Cruz for a league game against Cabrillo.
